

~ THE HOPLITE ~

Here are some standard questions answered in deciding the options for a Hoplite:

1. Would you like a standard Bamboo Cover or would you like to upgrade to Hardwood Leaves?
(The premium sizes come with lengthwise leaves or widthwise leaves.)
2. Would you like Lengthwise or Widthwise Hardwood Leaves? (2' wide Hoplites only come with widthwise leaves.)
3. Would you like Leaf Guards? (Only applicable for table that have hardwood leaves.)
4. Would you like a standard Shelf or would you like to upgrade to a Drawer?
5. Would you like a standard White Vault Floor or would you like to upgrade to a Bamboo Vault Floor?
6. Would you like a Fabric Lid, Fabric Inset or a Lego Inset? (Can be used on any Hoplite)
7. Would you like any detachable Rail Accessories? (Can be used on any Hoplite)

~BAMBOO COVER VS. HARDWOOD LEAVES~

(Bamboo cover comes in caramelized or blonde and hardwood leaves come in lengthwise or widthwise)

1. The Bamboo cover is one solid piece for tables under 2' or 2'4" x 3'2" or 4'. They get split into 2 pieces for tables larger than that and then we recommend you use the tongue and groove hardwood leaves.
2. There are less Length-wise leaves than Width-wise leaves when you cover up your table.
3. Structurally the Width-wise leaves are a little stronger because they are spanning a shorter distance.
4. Aesthetically the Length-wise leaves tend to make your table look longer, and the Width-wise leaves are more of that traditional look where it looks like your table has been "expanded" by leaves.
5. In regards to leaf guards, if you keep two leaves inside your table, with the Length-wise leaves they would create long desks and leaves a longer, narrower play surface, whereas the Width-wise leaves would create shorter desks on the ends and leaves a square playing surface. Most Hoplites are small and work best with widthwise leaves.

6. If your table has a 2' width then width-wise leaves are your only option.

~ LEAF GUARDS ~

A leaf guard is a support piece for a leaf that creates a desk at the end or side of your table where no game pieces can go underneath it.

Here it is starting to attach.

Here it is almost attached.

Here it is attached to the widthwise leaf.

2'4" x 4'10" cherry hoplite with one hardwood leaf on either side as a desk with leaf guards installed. The leaf guard is the piece that is attached to the edge of the leaf. It prevents anything from getting underneath the leaf when installed like this for use as a desk.
